Raid Brings Japanese Military Shake-Up

TOKYO OUSTS COMMANDER OF VITAL BUREAU

Capital, Still Jittery Over Surprise Attack, Continues To 'Fish' for News.

CONTRADICTS ITSELF

Latest Statement Says Ten Bombers Staged Raid on Four Major Cities.

(By United Press)

Radio Tokyo said today that about 10 United States medium bombers from three aircraft carriers had taken part in Saturday's raid on four Japanese cities and that Lieut. Gen. Akira Muto had been ousted as commander of the military affairs bureau and sent to the front.

The propaganda broadcasts from Tokyo increased confusion and seemed to indicate mounting Japanese nervousness in connection with the reported bombing attacks since many of the radio statements were illogical or contradictory.

The removal of Muto, however, was regarded as reflecting dissatisfaction with the central home command, presumably due to the effectiveness of the raids as described in Axis dispatches.

American and Allied sources still were silent, but enemy propaganda broadcasts kept up a steady and uncoordinated stream of comment.

Tokyo radio, for instance, described the American planes as B-25 bombers—but these are too large to take off from carriers. It also gave varying reports of the number of planes involved and the number shot down.

It was announced that Maj. Gen. Kenryo Sato had been named to succeed Muto.

There was nothing to indicate whether, as seemed probable, there was a direct connection between Muto's removal and the bombing of Tokyo and other Japanese city Saturday by planes which the Japanese identified as Americans.

The Japan year book calls the military affairs bureau "the real center of military administration."

A special communique of Japanese imperial headquarters, indicated that Japan had now about made up its mind, after two days of worried uncertainty, that carrier-based planes made the Satur-

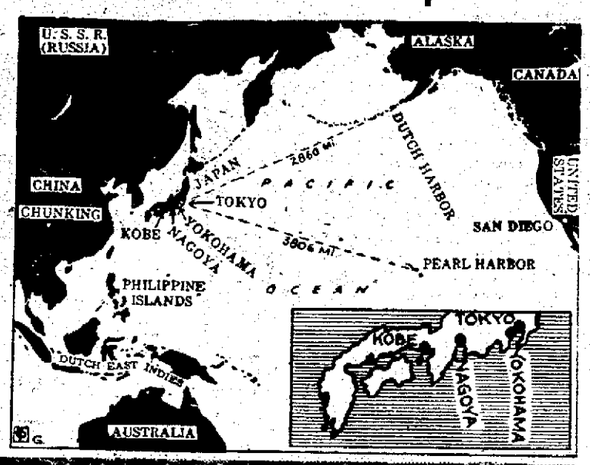
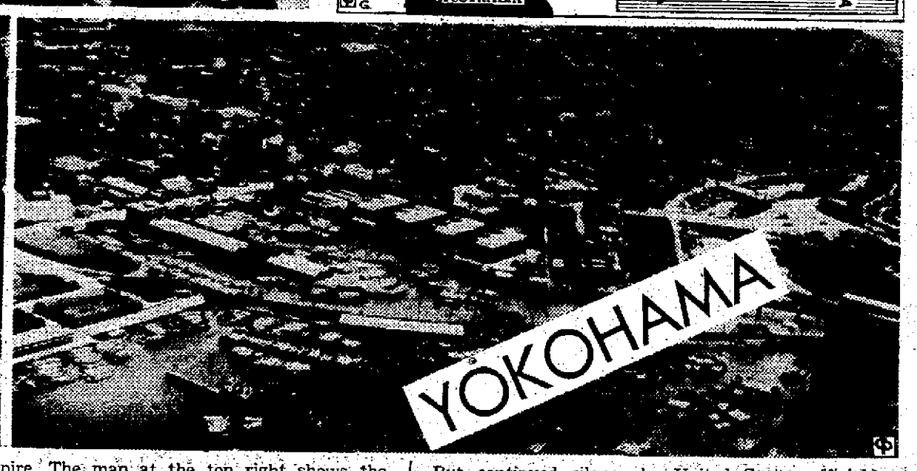
Air Views of Cities Struck By First Raids on Japan





Here are air views of the three big Japanese cities struck by the first United Nations raids on Japan's island empire. The map at the top right shows the location of the bombed cities, together with the American bases from which the planes might have been sent. But continued silence by United States officialdom kept the Japs excitedly trying to guess where they started from and where they went.

Recapture Oil Field City and Relieve British

Strike Sharp Counter-Blow At Enemy In Irrawaddy Valley To Ease Up Allied Situation; MacArthur Speeds Plans For Offense.

BULLETIN

NEW DELHI, India — (AP) — Royal Air Force planes, in a counteroffensive against Japanese positions in Burma, smashed at an airfield at Bassein in the Irrawaddy delta and machine-gunned motor launches in the Bassein river and small barges in Gwa bay, an air communique said today.

(By United Press)

CHUNGKING — Chinese forces rushed to the western Burma front to relieve hard-pressed British imperials have recaptured Yenangyaung in the Irrawaddy valley oil fields, liberated "several thousand" encircled British troops and killed more than 500 Japanese in two days of bitter fighting, a Chinese headquarters communique disclosed today.

The Chinese reinforcements were believed to have eased temporarily a tense Allied situation in the heart of the destroyed oil fields.

The communique said the Chinese forces had been moved into the Yenangyaung area from Kyaukpadaung, 35 miles to the northeast and only 100 miles below Mandalay.

It was the first real counter-blow against the Japanese on the Irrawaddy front since the weary British evacuated Prome, 100 miles below Yenangyaung, and started their slow retreat toward the oil fields.

Only yesterday it was revealed that Chinese troops under Lieut. Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell had been sent to the Irrawaddy area to aid the British. The number of reinforcements was not disclosed.

A continued critical Sino-British situation on the Sittang, Salween and Irrawaddy river fronts was bringing sharp demands for a unified Allied command and a timely counter-offensive.

The semi-official Chinese Central News agency, urging immediate reinforcements, said only a supreme command could prevent the collapse of Allied resistance in Burma. Independent retreats, it said, constantly exposed the flanks of Allied units on other fronts.

Central also urged a strengthening of American Volunteer group and Royal Air Force units to offset Japan's aerial superiority and said the Allies should enlist the assistance of Burmese natives.

British aircraft also came to the support of hard-pressed imperial ground troops, bombing and machine-gunning Japanese forces at Magwe, gateway to the Burma oil fields which the enemy captured last week. This raid followed Friday attacks on Japanese concentrations at Sitsungwe, 50 miles southeast of Magwe, and Taynkayer, 80 miles southeast.

Several smaller Chinese columns, including guerilla units, were reported west of the Manda-

County to Get $18,232 Civilian Defense Fund

All City, Village, Township Directors To Meet To Consider Distribution Of Money Allowed By Bricker.

Richland county will receive $18,232 under the $2,000,000 allocation ordered by Gov. John W. Bricker for assisting local governments in financing civilian defense, according to word from Columbus today.

Commissioner Ray Hout, named last Thursday as county chairman of civilian defense, said he will call a meeting of all civilian defense directors in the county and the 37 members of his committee to consider distribution of the money when official word of the allocation is received.

The state board of control was expected to approve the distribution from excess poor relief revenues today. Governor Bricker was to appear personally before the board to ask for the distribution.

Bricker, in asking for the transfer of funds, indicated there might be some question on the legality of the action. Attorney General Thomas J. Herbert, a member of the control board who investigated legal aspects of the transfer, said, however, he was ready to defend the action "in any court in the state."

NEW SUB ATTACK

Axis Undersea Craft Shells Curacao Refinery.

WILLEMSTAD, Curacao—(U.P.)—An Axis submarine that shelled the Royal Dutch Petroleum company's refinery here early yesterday in the third attack of the war against West Indies oil installations failed to accomplish any damage, it was announced today.

The raider was driven off by a barrage from a coastal battery which forced it to dive to safety after it had lobbed only a few shells onto the island.

The incident followed by two months the first attack against oil refineries on the Dutch islands off the coast of South America, which process petroleum from Venezuela and Colombia.

The white-haired, 70-year-old Hull has been convalescing in Florida for more than two months.

'BLACKOUT' CURB PAINT STUDIED

Traffic Chief Weighs Plan To Change From Orange To White Markings.

The familiar orange-painted curbing which warns Mansfield motorists of restricted parking zones may soon give way to white paint as a part of the city's civilian defense program.

Traffic Commissioner Frend C. Boals said today that he was considering painting the restricted zones with white rather than orange paint because the white paint would be more visible at night, and particularly during any possible blackouts.

Commissioner Boals said he expected to have the zones painted again within the next month and that he might advocate the change to white paint. If white paint is used "no parking" signs would be stenciled on the curbing to warn motorists that the zones were restricted for parking, he added.

While the commissioner was considering the change, city street workers began their spring street repair program with a six-man crew being detailed to patch holes on streets which have been badly battered by winter ice and spring thaws.

Charles H. Hebel, streets superintendent, said that his men had been making temporary repairs for the past few weeks but that

Bomb Greets Advent of New French Regime

Report Missile Thrown Into Crowd At Pro-Axis Meeting; Moscow Claims Nazi Take Over Vichy Ships.

(By United Press)

VICHY, France—Occupied France greeted with a bomb last night the first collaborationist mass meeting since Pierre Laval assumed power Saturday as head of a government pledged to co-operation with Germany.

The Paris radio announced today that an unidentified man threw a bomb in the Rennes theater while 800 persons were listening to a collaborationist meeting at which Jacques Doriot, a leader on the Laval side, presided.

Paris did not say what casualties there were, if any.

(As heard at London, Paris said that one person was wounded when the bomb was thrown from the second gallery while Doriot himself was speaking.

MAP STRATEGY

FDR, Gen. Marshall Confer on U. S. War Policies.

WASHINGTON — (U.P.) — Gen. George C. Marshall, army chief of staff, is expected to begin important conferences on war strategy today with President Roosevelt and other high military leaders.

He and Harry L. Hopkins returned from a confidential mission to London yesterday. Hopkins remained in New York temporarily but Marshall and the four British representatives who reportedly accompanied him flew immediately to Washington.

The Marshall-Hopkins mission was widely interpreted as a step in plans for opening a second front in Europe this spring or summer. Marshall told reporters in London soon after his arrival that the United States was anxious to "expand over here"—referring to the role of the American armed forces in the war against the Axis.

(London also reported unrest in Vichy, France and said heavily armed patrols were guarding the streets of the great Toulon naval base on the Mediterranean.

(Moscow asserted that German naval experts had arrived at Marseilles to take over the Vichy battleship Dunquerque, 26,500 tons, and heavy cruiser Dupleix, 9,938 tons.

(It quoted Stockholm sources that German crews had replaced Frenchmen in the cruiser Joan of Arc, 6,496 tons and two destroyers, and said "Laval has under-

Coughlin Admits 'Social Justice' His Responsibility

ROYAL OAK, Mich.—(AP)—Rev. Charles E. Coughlin, Royal Oak priest, in a public statement today assumed personal responsibility for control of the magazine "Social Justice," its policies and its contents "if Social Justice, as Attorney General Biddle is reported to have declared in his press conference, is 'clearly seditious'."

Biddle announced Friday at Washington that a special District of Columbia grand jury would investigate all phases of the publication of "Social Justice," a magazine which Father Coughlin founded in 1934, but with which the priest disavowed any connection since 1940.

The attorney general's action followed an order from the postmaster-general barring the editorial from the mails for alleged seditious statements.

Father Coughlin has stated that "Social Justice" is owned by his parents, Thomas J. and Amelia Coughlin of Royal Oak. E. Perrin Schwartz is its editor.

STEP-UP: Japanese Increase Attacks On Corregidor Base

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—Opening of an intense Japanese effort to batter the Philippine island fortress of Corregidor into helplessness by bombs and siege guns was reported today by the war department.

From new positions on the Bataan peninsula and from the south shore of Manila bay the foe began an intensive artillery bombardment yesterday, and for the first time dive bombing raids were made on Corrigedor.

Defending gunners replied effectively to the new attack, silencing at least three batteries, a communique reported, and breaking up three motor truck and troop concentrations on Bataan.

Five dive bombing raids were made on Corregidor and in addition Japanese light bombers attacked Corregidor and Fort Hughes several times from high altitudes.

One bomber was hit by anti-aircraft fire, the war department reported.

Meanwhile near Zamboanga, on the island of Mindanao more than 500 miles to the south, an American-Filipino patrol ambushed two bus loads of Japanese troops and inflicted numerous casualties.

The three enemy batteries silenced by the fort's guns were in addition, officials said, to at least four and possibly five which it was announced yesterday had been put out of action in the past few days.

Bombing attacks on the besieged island forts have been confined thus far to high altitude level-bombing, officials noted.

The dive bombers operated on

BLITZ: Hitler Attempts To Restore His Air War Punch

(By Associated Press)

Adolf Hitler, observing his 53d birthday at eastern front headquarters, was reported by the Russians today to be trying to put the old blitz back into the air with attacks by as many as 50 planes against single secret objectives.

The signs were that he had marshaled the bulk of his air force on that front, at the expense of his air strength in western Europe. Poor visibility over the continent last night, however, caused a pause in the British offensive in the west.

Small RAF fighter forces swept over northern France yesterday without opposition and the best the Germans could muster today against Britain was a three-plane strafing and bombing of a train and a south coast town. Three persons were killed and several injured.

German bombers ranged the vast Russian front, smashing at railway stations, airdromes and front line positions. They were impelled to this activity by improving weather, the hope of starting a general offensive sometime soon and perhaps also by the widening breach which the Russians were exploiting against the Finns above Leningrad. On the southern front the Germans were making a show of action by tank-plane teams, the Russians said, but failed to restore positions pierced by the Red army.

The German high command said its bombers hit again at harbor installations and utilities on the Caucasian coast of the Black Sea, with one big Russian tanker damaged. German fighters were credited with destruction of 22 planes without loss in the southern sector.

The Germans said that "local" Russian attacks collapsed in the central and northern sectors and Finns exacted heavy Russian losses "in defensive battles."

Sheriff Asks Commissioners To Take Over Meal Contract

Sheriff Frank E. Robinson today asked county commissioners to take over supervision of the serving of meals to prisoners at the county jail and proposed that the meal contract be let to a Mansfield restaurant on bids.

Under an arrangement which has been in effect for more than 10 years, meals for prisoners have been prepared at the jail by the matron and a cook hired by the sheriff.

Sheriff Robinson said he proposed the change "to see if satisfactory meals can be served for less than 23 cents," the amount he receives. He said he had been criticised for allegedly making a profit on the meals. His action followed an announcement by commissioners last week that they would investigate cost of the meals to determine whether the 23-cent price was justified.

"I don't think I'm doing anything illegal under the present contract or receiving an excessive price for the meals, but if they can be prepared cheaper, I'm willing to let some one else do it," Sheriff Robinson said.

After hearing the sheriff's proposal, C. L. Mitchell, chairman of the commissioners, said he would

10 Per Cent Wage Deduction Considered For War Bonds

As Richland county's war savings bond committee continued preparations for its pledge canvass starting May 2, word came from Washington today that treasury officials are working out final details of a quota system under which every income-earner will be asked to put an average of 10 per cent of his earnings into war bonds or stamps.

Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau said that the new program, "the largest voluntary enrollment in history," will begin May 1. Quotas for May will be announced shortly and will be revised and stepped up in succeeding months.

"This ties in with our plans for a pledge canvass in the county," said Paul M. Eliot, chairman of the Richland county committee. "In this canvass, starting May 2 and continuing through May 9, approximately 1,000 workers will reach every income earner in the county and obtain a pledge of the amount he or she expects to put into war bonds or stamps in the future.

"Since Ohio is one of the first states to conduct this pledge activity, the canvass here and in other Ohio counties will serve as a test and the results will be watched with interest.

HOLLYWOOD

—By Robbin Coons

HOLLYWOOD — The leopards, their spots, etcetera.

Claudette Colbert and Joel McCrea were rehearsing "Palm Beach Story," with big, scatter-maned Preston Sturges in charge.

Claudette and Joel were five years married, parted now because Claudette thought she was no help to him. Claudette had run away, met "the richest man in the world" (Rudy Vallee) on a train, and was now a guest in his Palm Beach mansion—a hut so vast and fabulous that even the Hays office presumably wouldn't look down its suspicious nose.. Joel had pursued her there, and she was trying to explain why—for his carreer—she must pass him off as her brother.

Coons

THIS required a lot of argument, and a lot of rehearsal. The camera would pick them up in front of a large mirrow in one of the huge rooms, follow them through an archway into the drawing room where they circled a table, Claudette first and the expostulating Joe behind her, to finish squarely in front of the lens.

They did it a couple of times, and it didn't go They did it again This time the peripatetic debaters finished their tour with Claudette on the camera's right, Joel on its left, it was perfect.

Claudette thought so, too She cried happily, as if suddenly realizing it: "This is wonderful — I end up with my kisser on its right side!"

"THAT, honey," prodded Sturges gently but realistically, "is why you did it!"

'Oh, I did NOT!" protested Claudette "I never even thought of it!"

And she looked so cute, with her new long bob and her trim blue slack suit which was subbing for the evening gown she'll wear in the scene, that you could believe it—almost.

But this is the same Claudette whose fondness for her left profile (she thinks the other is "bad") has made her heroine of some of our best legends. There was "Tovarich" (1937) when the legend grew and grew that Claudette had insisted on the rebuilding of an entire set because it would have required her to enter from the left, thus exposing her "bad" side

This is the Colbert fixed idea She takes a lot of kidding on it, but nothing changes it. It seems she had an accident when she was a child, and her nose was broken, and—though you and I wouldn't notice it and in fact nobody could—Claudette notices a difference.

AND that's why you seldom see Claudette standing still on the left side of the screen talking to an actor on the right. You see her right profile occasionally but only when she's moving, and you never never see a still of her exposing that "bad" side

This should be the place to throw in some advice, i. e. that after "Remember the Day" Claudette could consider herself enough of an actress to give us full face value and forget her foible

But then I happened to think of the coin the Colbert draws down for that one "good" side, and who am I, . etc etc?

G. O. P. MEETS TO CONSIDER WAR POLICIES

Willkie Recommends Party Abandon Its Isolation Program After War.

(By United Press)

CHICAGO—The Republican national committee met today to consider a resolution of Wendell L. Willkie that the party pledge itself to abandon its historic isolation policy after the war.

It also has before it a resolution of Sen. Robert Taft of Ohio, that would postpone consideration of the party's position toward post war problems until the war has been won.

Willkie represents the interventionist wing of the party. Before Pearl Harbor, Taft was an isolationist. A third resolution, by Sen. C. Wayland Brooks of Illinois, also an isolationist before Pearl Harbor, also will be offered. It omits mention of the party's view toward post war problems.

All three resolutions had in common a vigorous pledge that the party would co-operate in every way to prosecute the war.

A fight over the conflict of view between Willkie and his adherents and the Taft-Brooks contingent, was an apparent probability and even before the committee assembled for its annual meeting, Rep. Joseph W. Martin of Massachusetts, its chairman, moved to head it off. He wanted a "harmonious meeting."

Martin planned to appoint a sub-committee to consider all the resolutions on their merits. This will result, some committeemen felt, in the national committee receiving a compromise resolution drawn by the sub-committee with the idea of satisfying both sides.

The Willkie men opposed at once this procedure and there was a possibility that Willkie, the party's 1940 standard-bearer and titular head, would come here from New York to fight personally for his resolution designed to remove from the party permanently its isolation philosophy.

Martin said meanwhile the committee would not attempt to plan "partisan political manipulations" but would "survey the methods by which the right and proper elections of 1942 can be carried out with the least impact on the nation's war efforts."

He charged that some administration leaders were attempting to prevent all criticism of its methods in conducting the war.

NEW SYNTHETIC RUBBER TESTED

U. S. Conceals Name of the Inventor and Location of Plant.

WASHINGTON — (INS — War production board agencies today are experimenting with a new kind of synthetic rubber which officials say can be produced as cheap as other substitutes and is as durable as the natural product.

The office of price administration is conducting the tests of the new rubber substitute and tires made from the process are being used on Washington taxi cabs to determine their durability.

Government officials are concealing the name of the inventor and the location of his plant which is now under guard of FBI agents. OPA officials said that it was of real importance to keep all information concerning the plant, the inventor and his process secret. They said that he had worked on his rubber substitute for six years in a small southern town.

The new product can be put on the market within a few months, according to the inventor, and he claims it will have a market price of 15 cents a pound where other synthetic rubber sells for about 44 cents. The plant necessary for mass production, he claims, can be built quickly because it requires very little steel for construction and since the process requires gas reduction plants, oil plants throughout the country could be used.

YOUTH, 12, CONFESSES KILLING COUPLE WHO GAVE HIM A HOME

(By International News Service)

SHANNON, Ill.—A 12-year-old boy who confessed that he killed a farm couple who for two years had given him a home and all its comforts was held in jail today while authorities awaited a decision on what action to take against him.

Calmly the bright-eyed lad, William "Billy" Geiseman, told police that he shot his benefactors, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Krugjohann, at their farm four miles from Shannon last Saturday, reloading a single shot rifle several times as he hid from their view in the house and barn.

The boy, whose mother is dead and whose father fell ill two years ago, told Sheriff Ray Westfall that he had been brooding over a whipping he got last Septemebr for running away from home.

He took the rifle, which Krugjohann, 45, had purchased only two months ago, and shot Mrs. Krugjohann, 43, as she returned to the house after hanging some rugs on an outside line, the sheriff said. He fired several more times as she attempted to telephone for help, according to his story.

Later, the boy fired at Krugjohann as the farmer returned to the barn with a tractor, according to the confession. He continued to fire at the wounded farmer after he started to switch off the tractor's ignition.

Authorities said the boy kept himself hidden, and that the Krugjohanns probably never knew the identity of their attacker.

PLAN SERVICE

Plymouth to Hold Memorial Program for Capt. Parsel.

PLYMOUTH — Memorial services for Captain Elmer Parsel, one of Richland county's first two victims of World war 2, will be conducted in the high school auditorium next Sunday evening.

Parsel, former flying instructor at Mansfield municipal airport, was killed in an airplane accident in the far eastern theater of war on April 2. Second Lieutenant Robert P. Spreng, of Mansfield, also met death in an airplane accident on the same dates, and it is presumed both were killed in the same mishap.

In honor of Parsel, members of the Plymouth Tourist club announced today the group will establish an "Elmer Parsel Memorial Fund," which will be used for the purchase of some form of memorial to be placed in the village park as a tribute to the flier.

UP and DOWN THE STREET

Traffic on the Pennsylvania railroad through Mansfield was held up two and a half hours early Sunday near Perrysville when one end of a sidebar on a freight locomotive dropped down and tore up a switch. The mishap was similar to the one that caused the wreck at Dunkirk last November when two Mansfielders and several other persons were killed. At that time the piston head on a locomotive fell off and rolled in front of a speeding passenger train, derailing it.

The honor of appearing on the same program with Dr. Eugene Van Cleef, president of the Ohio Academy of Science, came last week-end to Willis E. Wygant, jr., Mansfield pre-medical student at Denison university. Young Wygant, son of Dr. and Mrs. W. E. Wygant, read a paper on original experiments in biology at the academy's annual meeting in Granville. The experiments he described required four months to complete.

Employes in Mansfield's municipal court had a busy morning with more than 25 cases being brought into court as the result of arrests made over the week-end by Mansfield police and state highway patrolmen. Court session, which usually lasts little more than a half hour, ran more than two hours this morning. Most of the cases were in connection with traffic violators on city streets and highways near Mansfield.

A Columbus, Ga., native, who is working in Mansfield thought that both his automobile and dog had been stolen yesterday but he got his dog back. The Georgian reported to police that his auto had been taken from its parking place near the Isaly plant on North Franklin street and said that his dog, a Scotch terrier, was in it at the time. Investigation revealed that the car had been repossessed by a finance company but the dog was returned to him.

SAYS 2 FIRMS DEFY PRIORITY REGULATIONS

Charges Carnegie-Illinois, and Jones and Laughlin Snag War Effort.

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON—(UP)—The department of justice has filed suits in United States district courts to enjoin further violations of WPB priorities by the Carnegie-Illinois Steel corporation, and Jones & Laughlin Steel corporation, Attorney General Francis Biddle announced today.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON—The war production board, having charged two of the largest steel companies with repeated and deliberate violations of priority regulations, today continued its investigation of the entire steel industry.

Bills of complaint against the Carnegie-Illinois Steel corporation and the Jones and Laughlin Steel corporation were the first announced results of an industry-wide survey—still in process—conducted by the WPB's compliance branch with the assistance of the Federal Trade commission and the Justice department.

The complaints accused both companies of diverting steel to their private customers—customers of their choice—"at the expense of the needs of the armed forces and the maritime commission."

More than four months after Pearl Harbor, the WPB charged, the companies were accepting and producing civilian orders with low priority ratings, "while refusing to accept or make delivery under high-rated military orders."

WPB's greatest concern was over the "unauthorized deliveries of steel plates," in which a critical scarcity exists and which, under the regulations, are to be used exclusively for military purposes.

The complaints were turned over to the Justice department for "appropriate action." Permanent injunctions will be sought against continuance of the illegal practices as well as court decrees directing the companies to comply with WPB orders and regulations in the future.

Carnegie-Illinois is a subsidiary of the United States Steel corporation, the largest steel producer. Jones and Laughlin is the fourth largest producer.

(In Pittsburgh, President H. E. Lewis of Jones-Laughlin was "surprised" at the charges. "Nothing is being left undone by our employes and management to do our utmost in the present crisis and we are and have been breaking records repeatedly in our all-out war effort," he said.)

The alleged violations extended from May 31, 1941 to the present date. Officials said the most serious violations occurred late in 1941 and early this year and that some of them were made when delays in steel deliveries were holding up the vital shipbuilding program.

Asserts Fires Daily Occurrence Aboard Normandie

NEW YORK—(INS)—Fires have been of almost daily occurrence since salvaging operations began on the capsized liner Normandie, much of which is "mere tinderwood," Fire Commissioner Thomas J Walsh revealed today.

The fire hazard on the ship was high, he explained, because of the very nature of the difficult task of salvaging and the delicate construction of the vessel's interior.

Saturday's damage, the commissioner added, was "very trifling" because much of the material destroyed was to be removed anyway. It consisted chiefly of a burned out refrigerator.

Commissioner Walsh indicated he had no criticism of precautions taken, saying: "I think they've done everything possible."

NAMED ON COMMITTEE

H. Clyde Brokaw, vice president of the Shelby Cycle company of Shelby, was one of five Ohioans named today to an advisory committee of nine experts who will assist the War Production board in production and rationing as it affects the bicycle industry.

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO MONDAY, APRIL 20, 1942.

A "Be-kind-to-your-tires week" might help.

Some children are anxious to "lead their own lives"—as long as Dad foots the bill.

Dogs and chickens are fine, in their place—but their place is not in the neighbor's flower bed or garden.

Place Important Things First

WHATEVER objection is being made to lengthening the work week above the present 40-hour maximum, without overtime payment, must be based on sincere belief that the war can be won on that basis—rather than that 48, or even 60 hours a week, at regular pay, would be too much of a contribution to winning the war.

If, in such an emergency as an enemy attack on their home community, the most ardent proponents of a 40-hour week were called upon to work day and night to protect their homes, their families and their own lives, it cannot be doubted that every one of them would respond eagerly and earnestly, without thought of pay or hours.

The great difficulty, not only for contenders for a 40-hour week, but for millions of other persons in civilian service, is to make national application of what could be readily understood as a local situation, and to realize that every home and every man, woman and child in the United States is now as seriously threatened as if an invasion were already in progress.

If the purposes of Hitler and his Axis associates can be carried through there will be no safe spot in the United States, or in this hemisphere—and it is up to every individual in America to do his or her share in preventing such an accomplishment.

Much of the objection to stretching the 40-hour week results from reasonable belief that excessive war profits are being made by some individuals and firms—and that many persons in government employ are being paid out of all proportion to the value of their services, also that much public money is being wasted on non-military federal activities.

Justification for this belief should be a matter for prompt preventive action, so that everyone can feel assured that the sacrifices of war are equitably distributed and that none shall gain as a result of this conflict—as was so notoriously done in the first World war.

The 40-hour week, under normal peace conditions, served a useful and humanitarian purpose in its application to manual pursuits. It served not only to meet the requirements of industrial production in a nation at peace but also met a need for spreading employment during a period of depression. And it provided leisure in accord with progress of American standards of living.

We are now in a situation where wages are liberal and where the nation needs every hour's work that can be obtained, to meet the greatest peril in our history.

The vitally important thing now is to WIN THE WAR as quickly as possible—so that there may be no needless waste of human lives and so that the ways of peace in a free land may be soon restored.

Japanese Morale Jolted

ON HIS safe return from the spectacular American raid on the Japanese in the Philippines, Gen. Ralph Royce said that the Japs subjected to that terrific assault "didn't know yet what had hit them." They were plainly mystified by the sudden appearance and tremendous striking power of the invaders, and showed signs of terror.

"The most important military aspect of the mission," the general suggests, "was the frightening effect on the Japanese morale and the heartening effect on the Americans and the Filipinos still battling strongly on the islands." The shock to the Japanese is especially interesting.

It has been said by psychologists, and apparently verified on the battlefield in this war, that with all their collective courage and drive, the Japanese are liable to hysteria and mental shock when they are cornered or find themselves in unexpected danger. This is where the American troops have an advantage of them. Our men seem at their best in adapting themselves to new and dangerous situations. Such resourcefulness on the field of battle is sure to be a big factor in this war.

Mine Chief Enters Farm Field

THE EFFORTS of John L. Lewis to organize agriculture as part of the expanding labor movement come as a surprise to many people. It is also evidence that the ambitions of this aggressive leader are still large, in spite of some recent failures. He makes it clear that he is not content to remain merely the head of the United Mine Workers.

His present efforts are directed mainly at the dairy farmers. Thus the labor movement as represented by Mr. Lewis enters a new phase. It is regarded as a challenge to existing farm organizations, some of which are expected to oppose it strongly.

The present drive is evidently under the control of the United Mine Workers' "District 50," a labor organization already so varied in scope that it is said to include coke workers, chemical plant employees, cosmetic producers, dairy farmers and members of several other occupations which to outsiders do not seem to have much in common. Mr. Lewis explains that he is "organizing the unorganized" in order to "make them articulate"

President Edward A. O'Neil of the American Farm Bureau Federation says the big farm organizations will oppose Lewis's drive to organize the dairymen.

An Example of Courage

ADD Monty Stratton to the list of people who never give up. A promising pitcher for the Chicago White Sox two or three years ago, he lost a leg through a hunting accident. Determined to stay in baseball, he got an artificial leg and continued on the Sox payroll as a coach.

Now as manager of the Lubbock, Tex., team in the West Texas-New Mexico league, he says he will take his turn in the box. His main trouble is likely to be not so much the actual pitching as the fielding of his position. But his determination may overcome even this obstacle.

Finland is said to be tired of the war—and Italy seems also to have lost some of its enthusiasm.

The greatest assembly line is the American home.

War Emergency Has Funny Side

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

GROWING OUT of emergency, more funny little things are being said and done these times than it would be easy to shake a stick at. As genuine news, they're worth only a few words, or, at most, a few paragraphs apiece, but they are queer, at that.

Illustratively, in a period of normalcy Comrade Maxim Litvinov, Russia's ambassador in Washington, surely wouldn't have expressed himself as he did the other day. A short while ago Soviet Foreign Affairs Vice Commisar, S. A. Losovsky broadcast an estimate of the number of Germans slain on that front in recent fighting, and Berlin disputed the figure he named. Ambassador Litvinov was consulted on the subject by American newspapermen. "Oh, well," he answered, rather impatiently, "they were slightly killed anyway."

It was down at Miami that an interview was obtained from President Nicholas Schenck of the film company which hitherto has employed Lew Ayres, the movie star, previously committed to a conscientious objectors' camp for refusing military service against the enemy. "I don't for a minute defend the guy's views," commented Nick, "but I do have a certain sympathy for him personally because he can't help that anti-killing complex he's got. It's a phobia with him."

Warning to Wives.

The War Production Board issued a formal warning to American wives, within a week or two, not to sew cuffs onto their husbands' pants. Cuffless suits having been decreed, as a wartime measure to economize on the goods they're made of, it appears that quite a high proportion of tailors are turning out pants unfinished at the ankles, but are delivering 'em to customers to an accompaniment of raw material for prospective wearers' wives to stitch on. If the wives do it, the WPB's official release informs 'em, they'll lay themselves open to federal prosecution.

It doesn't greatly matter now, with warm weather almost at hand, but it's an item of interest that, next winter, when colds in the head begin to be rife, there's a prospect of a famine in quinine pills. Dr. Marston T. Bogert, Army Chemical Warfare Service consultant, states that experts are on the trail of some sort of synthetic stuff, but they haven't hit on it yet. That is, they've evolved a substitute for the old-fashioned article, but it's too strong to be monkeyed with except under a competent practitioner's supervision. It won't be safe for a sufferer from the sniffles to dose himself, directly from his druggist's shelf.

As we send more and more expeditionaries overseas, there's a forecast of complications relative to our Yankee boys' acquaintanceships with the local girls.

The matter's one of a bit of diplomatic discussion between Washington and North Ireland, Iceland and Australia already. As AEF-ers our kids obviously are more welcome than flowers in spring, but there are gentle hints that their popularity with the fair sex frets local masculinity a trifle.

Gold Worries.

The shrinkage in our gold hoard worries the treasury somewhat. Good gosh! It's down to nothing but a skimpy little $22,060,000,000. That's mentioned as if it were less than a silver dollar in one of our pockets.

There's a redeeming feature in the situation. Economists have decided on a method of preventing inflation. It's to keep wages, farm prices and industrial profits on an even basis with one another. The only puzzle is how to KEEP 'em there. That hasn't been solved yet. It's recognized, though, as quite an important detail.

Relax For Health In Wartime.

—By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

SOME TIME ago, before anybody blitzkrieged anybody else, Dr. Jacobson in Chicago advocated the gospel of relaxation. His idea was that in a civilization as highly geared as ours, rest was a necessity and that if properly performed, it would conduce to longevity and health.

I always felt that there was a slight exaggeration in these statements, but I certainly feel since moving around in war time that a great many people—especially at my age—are overdoing their worrying and activities and this gospel could be used with a great deal of valuable result.

"If we could learn how to balance rest against effort, calmness against strain, quiet against turmoil, we would assure ourselves of joy in living and psychological health for life." Psychologists believe that people who accomplish the most have four main attributes: first, rhythm in their activities with periods of maximum output and accomplishment, alternating with repose; second, a sense of values which makes them minimize effort; third, ability to reduce muscular tension; fourth, a readiness to fall asleep at will.

Tricks to Induce Rest.

Psychologists have gotten up ten tricks which they believe are useful in producing relaxation. I do not know whether they will do so or not, but in war time I recommend them to everybody over the age of fifty. They are:

1. Cut down on the intensity of your thinking half an hour before retiring. (Play Chinese checkers, plan an excursion for the week end, write a letter to a friend full of pleasant things you have been doing.)

2. Take plenty of time to get ready for bed (planning next morning's clothes, leisurely bath, and so on.)

3. If you like to read in bed choose non fiction or a "hard" book. Force your mind to grapple with cumbersome facts, bore it into unconditional surrender to sleep.

4. Transplant your mind from fears or hates to a field which has interest without excitement (a new wardrobe, possibly).

5. Make your mind hop from one idea to another. Just as the mind loses consciousness and sleep comes, thoughts become disjointed and scattered. (Start with some happy episode in childhood, for example.)

6. To quiet the body, get rid of any pressure or pain. (Lighten weight of covers, clothes.)

Tepid Baths and Rubdown.

7. Tepid bath without a rubdown. (Get into bed a little damp and chilly. As the body becomes warmed it becomes more and more comfortable. If during the night one becomes sleepless, throw back covers until the body becomes uncomfortably chilly. Then when the covers are pulled up again, the body once more sinks into coziness.

8. Imitate the slow, deep rhythmical breathing of sleep. (Helps regulate the circulation and may ease the mind and emotions; also tensions in the abdomen.)

9. Relax the muscles completely.

10. Get rested before trying to sleep. (Get into bed an hour or more before your regular time for retiring. Do so night after night to build up a reserve of rest and fall asleep without the old struggle.)

Timely Editorial

Scrap To Win The Scrap.

Last January the British waste-paper campaign brought in a total of 100,000 tons, exceeding by more than 50 per cent the haul of any previous month. This success was attained after British sources of waste paper already had been scoured time after time. It involved the salvaging of useless books and old business and personal letters as well as current accumulations from periodicals, wrappings and other sources.

This month's salvage of waste paper made it unnecessary for Britain to use her hard-pressed ships to bring paper from this side of the Atlantic. In other words, it freed 25,000 tons of shipping to carry urgently needed war supplies to Russia.

Americans, long known as a wasteful people, will have to change many habits to match what the British are doing in the salvage of waste materials.—Dallas News.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

Naval Board May Continue Policy Of Retiring Experienced Officers

—By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—Several days ago Rear Admiral Randall Jacobs, chief of the Bureau of Navigation, vigorously urged the house naval affairs committee to approve a bill to create a Women's Auxiliary Reserve in order to release much needed men for combat duty. The navy, the admiral gravely warned, is facing a serious shortage of seagoing officers and sailors to man its rapidly expanding fleets.

Jacobs' testimony was extraordinary in the light of what other navy brasshats are doing on this problem of seagoing personnel.

It may sound unbelievable but it is an absolute fact that these brasshats today are preparing to place on the retired list on June 30 hundreds of experienced regular navy and marine corps officers with from 10 to 25 years of active service.

On that day the navy careers of these officers are slated to come to an end. Because of the great war need, actually they won't be let out. What will happen is this: They will be placed on the retired list and simultaneously recalled to active duty. But as far as chances for promotion or a navy future is concerned, they are all washed up. When the war is over they will revert to retired status and be dropped.

This is nothing new. It has been going on for years. Selection boards, made up of brasshats, have "passed over" thousands of officers often because of some personal pique against them or their wives or because, as happened several years ago in the case of a group of world-famous pilots, they were not Annapolis graduates.

These officers entered the navy's fledgling air branch during the World war. They became the backbone of this service, pioneering many developments and setting many world records. But because they did not have the Annapolis label when they became eligible for promotion to the rank of commander, a selection board "passed over" every one of them and earmarked them for retirement.

Outraged by this gross unfairness, congress passed a special bill to save these officers. But the brasshats were more powerful than congress. They went to the president and got him to veto the bill.

Today, these officers are still serving their country in dangerous posts—as "discards" who, if they survive the war, will be retired as a "reward" for their service.

"Passed Over" Heroes.

ILLUSTRATIVE of the kind of masterminding that characterizes the decisions of these brasshat selection boards is the following:

In recent weeks the nation has been thrilled by the heroic deeds of Commanders Cassin Young, E. P. Abernathy and Francis J. Bridget. Young was awarded the Congressional Medal of Honor for extraordinary heroism during the Pearl Harbor attack. Blown overboard by an explosion, he swam back amidst a hail of fire and coolly maneuvered his ship to safety.

Captain of the navy tanker Pecos that was sunk by Jap bombers in the battle of Java, Abernathy, after ordering his crew to abandon ship, manned a machine gun on the bridge and fought off enemy planes swooping down to fire on his escaping men.

Bridget was cited by his commander for "extraordinary heroism" in the bombing of Cavite, during the battle of Manila.

These three gallant officers, with from 12 to 16 years active service, were "passed over" by selection boards in 1940 and 1941, and as a result were demoted hundreds of numbers in the promotion list.

Note: While army chief of staff in 1935, Gen. MacArthur, testifying before the senate military affairs committee, opposed the establishment of the navy's selection board promotion system in the army. Such a system, he said, "creates a psychology of fear and intimidation throughout the whole officer personnel. It is impossible in time of peace to determine who are the brilliant combat officers."

Sons of Rich Men.

WHILE axing officers of the caliber of Commanders Young, Bridget and Abernathy who are fighting for their country on the high seas, the brasshats are quietly dishing out commissions and soft berths to scores of draft eligibles who have the good fortune to be the sons of rich and influential fathers.

The other day the navy department issued a press release giving the names of 461 men commissioned as "aviation administrative" officers. Between the ages of 27 and 42, they will hold down desk jobs at induction centers, service schools, etc.

A large percentage of this list of newly-made officers are rich young men of the Social Register. These are a few of them:

Colby M. Chester, III, son of the chairman of General Foods corporation; August Belmont, scion of the famous socialite family; Clifford V. Brokaw, son of a prominent New York broker; Sherman Chickering, son of a leading San Francisco corporation lawyer; Michael Cudahy, of the famous packing family; Herbert Fleischacker, jr., son of a San Francisco banker; Channing Frothingham, of a prominent Boston family; Arthur A. Dunn, son of wealthy St. Louis, Mo., realtor; Robert Patterson, jr. and William P. Patterson, of the National Cash Register family; John S. Pillsbury, jr., son of the Minneapolis flour family; Ogden Phipps of the Long Island Phippses.

Washington is overrun with these young, wealthy socialites who have wangled navy commissions and are fighting the war on the exciting fronts of the capital's embattled cocktail lounges, salons and exclusive clubs. For some reason the Social Registerites seem to prefer the navy. Maybe it's because navy commissions are more easily obtained by the "right people" than army commissions.

Meanwhile, local draft boards are peppering Washington authorities with complaints about navy requests for the deferment of certain registrants facing induction on the ground that they are in line for a navy commission.

Note: Latest member of an influential family to be given a commission by the navy is Hiram Johnson III, grandson of the bitter isolationist California senator.

NEARLY 10 per cent of the men in the U. S. army and navy wear glasses. Further, officials expect this percentage to increase as admission standards are liberalized. . . . According to Intelligence reports from Chile the most active Axis propagandists there now are Italians. They are reported to be concentrating at present on denying Nazi persecutions of Catholics. . . . With plane production setting spectacular new records every month, it has become possible for authorities to give the airlines a break. In the past many of their planes have been taken by the government for emergency war purposes, but now they will be given a chance to replenish their dwindling supply of ships. Plans are under way to allocate a number of giant 42-passenger, four-motor Douglas transports to the major airlines.

Watching Trends

—By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON—Notes from a Capital Cuff: It's been some time since the government's tax planners dished out anything very palatable, but two recent recommendations to congress will be right tasty to a flock of income taxpayers.

One proposal by the treasury is to allow the deduction from income of large medical bills) between $500 and $2,500). The other is that boys and girls in college be considered as dependents until they reach their 21st birthdays.

A major operation, or prolonged illness, can consume a huge chunk of the income of a relatively small wage earner but under the present law doctors' bills are not deductible. Likewise many taxpayers long have complained about the provision of the law which restricts dependent children to those under 18 years of age.

There are thousands of taxpayers who can produce convincing evidence that sons and daughters, who go to college, become a much heavier financial burden on their parents.

Indications are that congress is more likely to approve the doctors' bills deduction than to extend the age of childhood dependency.

IT SEEMS that the stork, by working overtime, is adding to the complexity of Washington's housing problem. Since Pearl Harbor there has been an increase of 16 per cent in the number of births in the District of Columbia as compared with the corresponding period a year ago.

THERE are a number of federal workers here who wouldn't make a very good showing in a neighborhood popularity contest. They are the fellows who ride to work alone in a commodious motor car and never deign to pick up a fellow townsman who is footing it a considerable distance to a bus line.

And some of these ride-sharing slackers think they are deserved of tire priority rating.

A suggestion that the famous Japanese cherry trees hereafter be called the Korean cherry trees reminds Washingtonians of World War I days, when German fried potatoes became American fried and sauerkraut was renamed Liberty Cabbage.

Nature Lore

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

SWEET is the lore which nature brings . . ."

During these spring days and nights when the earth grows warm, and south winds bear the delicate odors of early bloom, the farm is bubbling over with new life. There is a cheery warble of the bluebird perched upon leafless whitethorn; a piercing, triumphant sweetness in the note of the wood peewee, that quivers from the slope; a depth of meaning in the rattle of the kingfisher along the meadow brook; a bit of living art in the flashing scarlet epaulets of red-winged blackbirds in the cattail swamp.

"The press of one's foot to the earth springs a hundred affections," said Walt Whitman. And should it not be so, when I am molded from its dust? The very stamp of this lowly origin is almost always upon me. My eyes are dimmed by its haze, or made keener by its beauty.

The lore of Nature does not come by knowledge of facts alone, —it is rather a mixture of love and fact. In other words, nature lore comes as much from the heart and the emotions as from the head.

When I walk through a forest and learn from the giant trees, —when I look up in wonder at the miracle—I feel taller, and possess a kindred dignity. When I stoop by a mossy spring to drink, it issues from the stones moistened with the spray. It is written in the silvery lichens that cling to rocks of ages past. It echoes from the shy throat of the secluded oriole.

Often on my walks through fields and woods, I come upon the same paths I have traversed before. Memories of early violets, trilliums and Indian moccasins are vivid and inspiring at any season. Nature is never far from the heart that aches to possess her.

The greenness of waving fields of grass, the blueness of the sky between half grown leaves, the odors rising from the damp mould of the woods, make me look upon them as though I saw and felt their beauty for the first time in my life. Perhaps that was what Wordsworth meant—

"And I have felt a presence that disturbs me
With the joy of elevated thoughts."

ATTACK BRINGS JAP SHAKE-UP IN KEY BUREAU

Tokyo Now Says 10 American Bombers Staged Surprise Raids on 4 Cities.

day attack on Japan's great cities.

"A hostile naval unit, with three aircraft cariers as its center, appeared on April 18 at a distant point off the eastern coast of Japan proper," it said. "But fearing a Japanese counter-attack it fled without approaching Japanese shores.

"On the same day approximately 10 enemy aircraft of North American B-25 type appeared over Tokyo and other areas, flying singly or in pairs.

"Hostile planes which managed to escape flew to China.

"Damages caused (in the raid) were extremely slight."

Previous Japanese versions spoke of 60 planes.

However, another Tokyo broadcast revealed that the damage was sufficiently serious to cause a meeting today of vice ministers in the Japanese cabinet to discuss "damage sustained in the raid and remedial measures, and regulation for control of rumors."

Japanese and other Axis broadcasts indicated that there was acute nervousness throughout Japan over the possibility of new and heavier raids.

Tokyo reported a series of air raid alarms over a wide area of Honshiu, the main Japanese island, Sunday, including one at the vitally important Yokosuka naval base 10 miles south of Yokohama on the tip of the peninsula which partly encloses Tokyo bay.

Before the issue of the special imperial headquarters communique, said "five United States pilots were captured" and that one raiding plane which attempted to escape to China made a forced landing in mountainous central Japan, where five members of the crew were taken prisoner.

This indicated that only one plane had been captured, because the "five pilots" seemed to be the five-man crew of this two-motored medium bomber.

Some broadcasts said they were based on aircraft carriers; others that they came from China; in one broadcast Tokyo suggested the planes took off from carriers and flew to China to land.

Japanese broadcasts were somewhat conflicting regarding Sunday's air raid alarms, in indication that they extended to numerous cities over a large part of the day.

There were air raid alarms in five separate areas of Japan, however, according to dispatches emanating from Tokyo.

According to some reports no planes were seen; others said that planes had reconnoitered over Japanese cities and were identified as American.

It seemed agreed that the Tokyo area, possibly including Yokohama and Yokosuka, had a two-hour alarm in the early hours of Sunday morning and another at 1 p. m. Sunday which extended from Tokyo to Yokosuka to various areas of central Japan.

Berlin reported that all cities along the Japanese coast, including Tokyo with its 7,000,000 population, were blacked out completely.

So Solly, Adolf!

(By United Press)

Adolf Hitler was 53 today, and one of his first birthday presents, according to the Tokyo radio, was a message from Emperor Pu Yi of Manchukuo:

"Congratulations on the occasion of your 57th birthday."

It was assumed that as Hitler, like other dictators, is sensitive to the encroaching years, he would receive the message in corrected form.

Army Silent On West Coast 'Alert'

SAN FRANCISCO—(INS)—Army authorities kept a tight-lipped silence today on the identity of a reported "target" off the west coast that held a large section of the San Francisco bay area in a state of alert yesterday for three hours and 15 minutes.

The alert was the city's second in three days and the longest to date. April 16, San Francisco had a 17-minute alert, the first during daylight hours thus far in the war.

Yesterday's warning was sounded at 1:15 a. m. and lasted until 4:40 a. m., embracing an area of 75 miles south to Monterey and as far inland as San Jose and silencing virtually all northern California radio stations.

Chief of Government Laval called his cabinet to meet in the presence of Marshal Henri Philippe Petain, and to make a declaration on his foreign and domestic policies in a national radio speech at 2 p. m. EWT.

Laval announced that he had removed George Mondanel, chief of the political section of the secret service, who arrested him Dec. 13, 1940 when his first collaborationist ministry fell. Mondanel will be assigned to duties outside Vichy, it was said.

Petain, in a national radio speech yesterday said outgoing Vice Premier Adm. Jean Francois Darlan continued his official heir and was in command of the armed forces.

"M. Laval will exercise under my authority direction of domestic and foreign policies," he said.

"It was with M. Laval at the most tragic moment of our disaster I founded the new order which must assure French recovery. Today, in a moment as decisive as that of June 1940 (the collapse) I find myself again with him to resume the national and European organization effort for which we together laid the bases."

He appealed for popular support.

Fund Workers to Make Final Reports Tomorrow.

Final reports on the progress of Mansfield Community Fund workers, who have already raised more than $18,000 of a $25,000 objective, will be heard at a report meeting tomorrow at 11:45 a. m. at the Evergreens cafeteria.

Rev. D. N. Roller, general chairman of the drive, said that the final report was being held up to give workers in offices, stores and industrial plants the opportunity to contribute from their pay envelopes received Saturday.

Roller said that he had "the utmost confidence" that the goal would be reached because preliminary reports showed that a great number of the firms are contributing 100 per cent.

10 Per Cent Wage Deduction Considered For War Bonds

to put an average of 10 per cent of their earnings into bonds and stamps should be borne in mind by all residents of the county when they are contacted by the pledge workers."

Morgenthau said that management and labor will be asked to cooperate, and he added that "10 per cent of every company payroll is the minimum war bond goal." About 50,000,000 persons will be urged to take part in the program.

The object of the double-barreled drive is to make a success of voluntary bond purchases as contrasted with compulsory purchases under a "forced savings" system as proposed by Price Administrator Leon Henderson and some other officials.

The war bond campaign is intended primarily to raise money to finance the war but a major collateral purpose is to check inflation by siphoning out of consumer spending channels vast amounts of money.

son, only Democratic member of the control board, said he would not contest the legality of the move and would "abide by the attorney general's statement that the governor's proposal can be carried out without calling a special legislative session."

Plans for co-ordinating the activity of the new county council and the Mansfield civilian defense organization were discussed this morning at a conference between Hout and Municipal Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch, chairman of the city group.

Kalbfleisch said he welcomed the word that state funds would be made available to the local governments because "this will make possible a lot of things we haven't been able to do in the past." He said his group would be prepared to offer a program asking that a portion of the state money be used for protection of the most vital points in the city.

It was believed likely that the money will permit purchase of air raid sirens and other items for which money previously was not available. Also, the medical division of the city council hopes to obtain a portion of the money to finance purchase of items for casualty stations that cannot be raised by public solicitation.

Bernard Hardy, Red Cross first aid director, reported today that the medical division's drive last week produced enough material to equip completely one casualty station, plus items for other stations. The material obtained included 145 sheets, 40 blankets, a large quantity of towels, washcloths, and pillow cases. A number of bundles are still to be picked up.

Distribution of the $2,000,000 will include the following county allocations:

Ashland, $6,566; Crowfard, $8,548; Holmes $968; Morrow, $1,109; Huron, $6,739.

Pacific Command Maps Offensive

BULLETIN

GENERAL M'ARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS, Australia—(U.P.)—General Douglas MacArthur and Prime Minister John Curtin have reached complete agreement on plans for "knocking out Japan by a concentration of Allied strength," it was announced today after a three-hour conference of the two leaders.

(By Associated Press)

U. S. ARMY HEADQUARTERS, Australia—The new Allied command in the southwest Pacific moved swiftly today to map the offensive to which it was committed during the week end by an agreement formalizing Gen. Douglas MacArthur's appointment as commander-in-chief of all land, sea and air forces.

As the initial step, Prime Minister John Curtin met with MacArthur and other Allied service chiefs in the first of a series of conferences which the Australian government hoped would enable it to meet the requirements of the armed forces with a minimum of delay.

Curtin, who said his government had joined with the United States, Great Britain, New Zealand and the Netherlands in granting MacArthur a charter as supreme commander in this vital war theater, attended the conference in his new role as defense minister.

Informed quarters said the defense portfolio had been created by the Australian war cabinet to eliminate red tape.

Curtin disclosed MacArthur had been instructed specifically to prepare to assume the offensive.

Announcement of the agreement formalizing MacArthur's appointment, as commander-in-chief in the southwest Pacific, effective as of Saturday midnight, was issued from his headquarters yesterday.

It said that, subject to his supreme authority, Gen. Sir Thomas Blamey of the Australian army had been named commander of all Allied land forces, while Lieut. Gen. George H. Brett and Vice Admiral Herbert F. Leary—both Americans—had been designated to command the Allied air and naval forces respectively.

Maj. Gen. Julian F. Barnes, U. S. A., will command all United States army forces in Australia. Lieut. Gen. Jonathan M. Wainwright, commander of U. S. forces in the Philippines, also will receive his orders from MacArthur.

MacArthur was expected to complete his organization today by naming his headquarters staff.

Destroy 40 Jap Planes In 2 Raids

MELBOURNE, Australia —(INS)—United Nations fliers destroyed 40 grounded Japanese planes yesterday in two sweeping raids against Rabaul, New Britain island, it was announced here today.

The fliers concentrated on enemy shipping and aircraft at Lakunai airdrome.

All of the American and Australian planes returned to their bases despite strong opposition by Japanese fighter planes. The returning fliers reported that the enemy appears to have been strengthened in this area.

One vessel in Rabaul harbor probably suffered a direct hit, it was said.

The attacks were carried out during "severe" weather.

Swooping down over the harbor in the face of heavy anti-aircraft fire, the United Nations' pilots bombed and machine-gunned enemy flying boats moored there.

The fliers unloaded thousands of pounds of high explosives on the airdrome, destroying runways and were said to have destroyed 40 grounded Japanese bomber and fighter craft in two sweeps.

heavy frost killed some of the earlier fruit buds and nipped garden plants.

Cherry, pear, and peach trees are ready to bloom in the county and are at a stage where they are easily damaged by frost, orchardists pointed out.

The sun was expected to warm things up considerably today, but the weatherman forecast it will be "rather cool again tonight." The temperature at noon was 48.

There were snow flurries shortly before noon Sunday and the temperature during the day failed to go above 39 degrees. Overcast skies and a brisk wind made it an uncomfortable day to be out. Average temperature reading for the week-end was 35.7 degrees, nearly 11 degrees below normal.

Sheriff Robinson pointed out that the 23-cent price was set up during the term of E. P. Long, who preceded him in office, and was renewed early this year by the county commissioners. Under the county's arrangement, the meal contract is let to Mrs. Glenn Freeman, wife of the chief deputy sheriff, who turns the money over to the sheriff. That plan has been approved by common pleas court and state examiners.

The sheriff buys the food supplies and cooking utensils, employs a cook, and pays the electric and gas bills for the cooking out of the 23-cent price.

MILDRED L. WAPPNER WEDS NED E. DUMOND

Rev. Martin L. Wappner Performs Ceremony for Niece On Saturday Evening Before Altar of St. Paul's Lutheran Church.

BEFORE the altar of St. Paul's Lutheran church Saturday at 7:30 p. m. Miss Mildred Louise Wappner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Wappner, 214 East First street, became the bride of Ned E. Dumond, of Columbus, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Dumond of Fort Seneca. Rev. Martin Wappner, uncle of the bride, officiated at the ceremony assisted by Rev. H. L. Gilbert, pastor of the church.

The service was performed before an altar attractively decorated with palms, ferns, beauty baskets of Picardy gladioli and two seven branch candelabra. During and preceding the ceremony nuptial music was played by Leo Seybold, organist. He played "I Love You Truly," "O Promise Me" and the traditional wedding marches.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was attired in a powder blue wool jersey street length frock with navy blue accessories. She wore a shoulder corsage of gardenias and pink roses. Her only jewelry was a single strand of pearls, a gift of the bridegroom. Miss Martha Wappner, sister of the bride, served as the maid-of-honor. She wore a pink wool jersey frock with navy blue accessories and a shoulder corsage of gardenias and tea roses. J. D. Shaw of Columbus served as the best man. Ushers were Dale Dumond, cousin of the bridegroom, and James Wappner, cousin of the bride.

Mrs. Wappner appeared at her daughter's wedding in a navy blue and chartreuse ensemble with navy blue accessories and a corsage of mixed spring flowers. Mrs. Dumond wore a navy blue street length frock with beige accessories and a corsage of gardenias and sweet peas. Following the ceremony a reception was held for 75 guests at the home of the bride's parents. Luncheon was served buffet style from a long table attractively decorated with spring flowers and a three tiered wedding cake topped with a miniature bridal couple.

Mrs. Dumond was graduated from Mansfield Senior high school and has been employed at the S. S. Kresge company. Mr. Dumond was graduated from Fort Seneca high school and is employed at the Curtiss-Wright corporation in Columbus. The couple is now residing at 695 Kenwick road in Columbus. Out-of-town guests at the wedding were from Tiffin, Fort Seneca, Ashland and Columbus.

Garden Club Of Ohio Plans Spring Session

Mansfielders, like every patriotic garden club member throughout the land, have made "Garden for Victory" their motto. In response to almost overwhelming requests from enthusiasttic members for information, the Garden Club of Ohio plans to devote its spring meeting Wednesday, April 22, to all phases of the Victory Gardens program. This meeting, which opens at 11 a. m., will be held in Steinway hall at the Halle Brothers company in Cleveland, and will present four speakers who are all authorities in their respective fields.

Andrew S. Wing, a former Ohioan, who is now editorial director of "The Garden Digest," and secretary of the government's Victory Gardens program, will be the first speaker. He will discuss Victory Gardening from the national angle. Mr. Wing defines a "Victory Garden" as "any garden that helps win the war."

At 2 o'clock in the afternoon, Mrs. Ellen Shipman of New York, noted landscape architect and horticulturalist, will speak on "Planting the Victory Garden." Mrs. Shipman is known as the designer and creator of hundreds of beautiful gardens all over the United States. She was landscape architect for the estates of Thomas A. Edison, Vincent Astor, Henry Ford, Mrs. Carl Tucker, and many others. In her talk for the Garden Club of Ohio members, Mrs. Shipman will tell how to skillfully combine "vegetables for victory with flowers for morale."

Two well-known speakers, Harold S. Ward, Cuyahoga county agricultural agent, and Gabriel Simon, county club agent, will share the day with Mr. Wing and Mrs. Shipman. Both Mr. Ward and Mr. Simon will discuss gardening problems peculiar to Ohio. Mr. Simon will speak in the morning, Mr. Ward in the afternoon.

Announcement has been made by Mrs. William A. Moeller, president of the Garden Club of Ohio, who has charge of the spring meeting, that, due to the large crowd expected, members only can be admitted to the lectures. No arrangements will be made for luncheon. According to Mrs. Moeller, many groups are planning to go to Cleveland by train and bus, thereby doing their bit to help in the tire conservation program.

Clubs Contribute Money To Fund For War Bonds

The number of "Party Patriots" is increasing and the sponsors of the plan to give up refreshments at club meetings in order to use the money for the war, expect to have still more groups enrolled by the time the club season begins anew in the fall.

Many groups are discussing the plan which was introduced by the Teachers' Wives club, at their annual business meetings. Those that have signified their intention of becoming "Party Patriots" in the fall are the Mansfield Garden Study club, the Conversational club, the P. E. O. Sisterhood and the Missionary Society of the First Lutheran church. The latter two organizations do not serve refreshments at their meetings, but the members have decided to contribute to the "Party Patroats" funds for purchasing war savings bonds.

At a recent meeting of the Teachers' Wives club, that group contributed $5 to the fund and also gave one dollar to the Salvation Army, instead of spending that amount for refreshments.

Any interested group that has not been notified of the "Party Patriots" plan by letter is urged to contact Mrs. H. D. Bishop, president of the T-W club, or one of the following committee members: Mrs. Nelson Neff, Mrs. A. L. Derr, Mrs. Dean Rex, Mrs. Edwin Cooper, Mrs. George Harmony and Mrs. Harry Scoles.

While some clubs do not want to entirely discontinue serving refreshments, they have stated that they plan to cut down on the amount of food served and to use the money thus saved for the purchase of war savings bonds. When the bonds reach maturity, the "Party Patriots" will use the funds for some civic project. All clubs participating will have a voice in determining for what purpose the money will be used.

Motto of the "Party Patriots" is "No food when you entertain; that money will buy a plane."

Mary M. Bader Engaged To Wed Dale D. Hammett

Luncheon was served at a long table decorated with pink and white carnations.

Miss Bader was graduated from Mansfield Senior high school and is employed at the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company. She is a member of Pi Mu sorority. Mr. Hammett is employed at the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company. No date has been set for the wedding as Mr. Hammett will leave soon for training in the United States army.

Promote 'Party Patriots' Plan

The plan to discontinue serving refreshments at club meetings and to spend the money thus saved for war bonds is being promoted by the committee shown in the above photo. High Value In Defense Training

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph. D.

Out of the present emergency will come some home blessings in disguise. But why did we need a war to get mothers to take courses in nutrition, home nursing and first aid? One also wonders why mothers of today had not been properly educated along these lines while in the public schools. But since they were not, it is splendid for them to get this education now.

Whereas the chief appeal to mothers to take these courses, generally given by the Red Cross, is for immediate defense, especially the courses in first aid and home nursing, the facts and skills gained in these courses will be valuable after the war is over. I wish all young mothers would enroll in one of these courses. They are free.

Within the past few months thousands of American mothers have been trained to administer first aid to children and other members of the family and to neighbors, reducing suffering and saving lives. So also have a good many thousand mothers learned to be good nurses of sick children and older persons in the home. Think of the hundreds of children afflicted with the common children's diseases who were saved not only from death but also from complications which often follow these diseases, because so many mothers have had training in defense courses.

Here I wish to entreat parents of ill children to call the doctor, even though these parents suppose they are good nurses at home; also to have the child checked several times after his apparent recovery. Such checks by the doctor would save so many children from serious effects following these diseases, such as ear, throat and heart infection.

Returning to the defense course, I wish more emphasis were placed on the psychology of getting the child to choose to eat and enjoy eating the foods he should eat. Often mothers know what a child should have but are unable to get him to eat. A few mothers, indeed, as they learn more about choosing proper foods for the growing child, become, on this very account, less able to win him to want to eat what they make available for him.

I have written a special bulletin on this matter to be had without cost by writing me in care of this paper, enclosing a self-addressed envelope with a three-cent stamp on it.

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

"Suppose you go ahead," I told Jim Watson, "and tell the captain of the troopers that I want to see him before they start. Gus and I will follow you closely."

"I'll do that," he answered, and set off at a brisk pace. I turned back to give assurance to Professor Diswell.

"We won't be long," I told him.

"Take all the time you need," he said a bit testily. "Don't bother about me. I'll be all right."

His manner confirmed a suspicion already in my mind—that the old man was anxious to talk with Charles about the sheet of cuneiform characters in Jack Bickett's handwriting which I had brought to him. If they kept their voices muted, Bill and Joe would have no inkling of the meaning of their conversation. But Diswell and Charles could not—rather, I amended wryly, would not—speak freely before me.

Studies Charles.

"Thank you," I said a bit dryly. "I'm glad to have that assurance."

I could not see Professor Diswell's face as he lay stretched out upon the cushions of the rear seat of the car, but the man named Charles was looking at me from behind the dark sun glasses he had put on when he came into the outdoor glare.

Charles was a keen individual, I decided, a person who would bear studying. As I walked gingerly with Gus across the nettle-strewn woodland, then more rapidly up the mountain road, I went over the impressions of him I had received since I first saw him.

I imagined that in his youth he had been of much the same build as Dicky. But now he was thin, gaunt almost to the point of emaciation, and his almost white unkempt hair and beard gave little indication of what their original color had been, except that I was sure it had been brown or black, not red or blond.

Eyes Hidden By Goggles.

I always have felt that I could tell much from the eyes of a person, but those of Charles had been oddly glassy when I saw him in the room where he had been bound. That I had attributed to his being gagged, and to the blows he had received; the old professor's eyes had exhibited the same phenomenon. Then before Charles came into the sunlight he had put on the dark sun goggles which now completely hid them.

I stopped short in my tracks, almost upsetting Gus who was following close at my heels, as the sudden thought struck me that I knew nothing of this man's identity or character, nothing but his own word that he had been a friend of Jack Bickett's.

Did Professor Diswell know any more? I knew that he was a wise old savant in his own line, but was he sufficiently panoplied by worldly wisdom to be able to detect an impostor?

"What's the matter, Missis Graham?" Gus asked. "You forget something?"

"No, no, Gus," I answered quickly. "I was just planning something I wanted to do. I'll go along now."

Wants Father's Verdict.

"Okay!" The mechanical monosyllable should have steadied me, but instead it set me off into a wilderness of pros and cons which I debated as I went on up the woodland road, but at a much slower pace than when I started.

I did not believe that Jack would have confided anything about his precious, closely guarded cuneiform writing to anyone but a most intimate companion, and this man had denied being that. Either he was lying in that particular, or his knowledge of the writing was a guilty one.

But in his favor was his apparent willingness to come to New York with us and see my father, or anyone else we wished. If he were guilty or masquerading as some one else, he would not be willing to do that.

I soon realized that I must let my father decide this for me, and I turned and spoke to Gus.

"I must telephone as soon as I get to the cottage," I said. "Will you please run ahead and see that nobody is using the phone. If it is being used, ask the officer to hurry and get the line clear."

HOROSCOPE

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Tuesday, April 21.

An exceptionally lively and eventful day is forecast from the predominant planetary configurations. Under the acute stimulus of the intellectual faculties as well as commercial insight and ingenuity all affairs should be due to move along at a very high tempo and with gratifying success. All pertaining to travel, change, communications, writing, publicity, advertising and promotional enterprises. The interest and co-operation of those in influential positions, as well as in public office, may be counted upon.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a year of liveliness, progress and productivity with things moving under unusual stimuli of the mind and nerve forces, inciting to travel, change, new ventures, especially where writing, publicity and promotional enterprise figure. Young people should be particularly brilliant, witty and ambitious to engineer large projects, and have support from elders, superiors and those in high places.

A child born on this day should be versatile, adaptable and resourceful with excellent mentality as well as commercial acumen. It could make a brilliant success in literary, professional, legal or commercial life.

Elizabeth Palmer Peabody founded America's first kindergarten in Boston public schools in 1870.

THEATERS

College vs. Cabaret.

When the singer is engaged in literary pursuits her gangster boy friend is looking for her with a marriage license. But the girl has her eye on a college professor enacted by Gary Cooper. Miss Stanwyck plays the singer and Allen Jenkins and Dana Andrews are in the cast.

CHAPTER XXVII

"I don't know, Randy, I just don't know what to say." Spots of high color stood out on Drake's thin cheeks. Randy was disturbed by his agitation.

"I guess I—oh, I don't know. What do you think about it?"

The discussion of Parris' offer had proved less troublesome than Randy had anticipated. Drake was not violent about it, but he was not easily convinced that he should accept it. She remembered a warning line in a second cablegram she had had from Parris: "As soon as he is well enough make him decide things. Give him full sense of independence."

"I don't know what to say, Drake. We've got to look at it as a loan, not as a gift."

"That's just it. Parris means to give it to me. I can't let him do that. It's too much—well, it's just charity."

"I'm certain Parris thinks too much of you to mean it like that. I'd hate for you to hurt his feelings."

"But what do you think I ought to do?"

"I don't know, Drake. After all, women haven't got much sense about money. You're a man and you know better than I do what's right."

"But how are we ever going to pay it back, Randy?"

"Well, out of whatever we make some day. As soon as you are able we've got to make some plans about what we'll do."

"You think we ought just to take the money, then?"

"You have to say that yourself."

Drake closed his eyes and his chest sank with a sigh of weariness.

"You don't have to think about it now—"

"Yes I do, Randy. We'll take it. When Parris comes home maybe we can give most of it back."

"Maybe so."

"I believe it's the right thing. Like you say, we've got to think some way out." Drake managed a smile. "I feel better. You reckon I could learn to do fancy-work, honey?"

Randy did not respond to the smile. She bit her lip hard to keep back tears.

"Listen, Drake. Don't ever joke like that. You're a man, and above everything else you're my man. I've loved you for a long time, but now I'm going to be proud of you."

Randy spread out the sheets of Parris' letter on the kitchen table. The letter had come two days ago, and she had read it a dozen times, but she returned to it again and again for the warmth and comfort, the sense of security and safety that she derived from it.

". . . Of course, Randy, it is a ghastly and terrible tragedy, particularly so to have happened to Drake. It will be harder for him than for most people because he was so free and independent. And now, I want you to note carefully my advices. Drake lived by that same freedom and independence. He will feel—probably already feels—that he has lost both. It will be your problem to restore them to him, that is if you really propose taking care of him as you suggest in your cabled message.

"I am sure that you have already made Drake feel that he is needed and wanted in the world. I am writing him in this same post that he is certainly needed and important in my life. We can't give him legs, but we can keep his mind and personality, and soul, if you wish to call it that, whole and well.

"I recalled last night that a long time ago Drake talked of real estate projects of some kind, I don't remember just what the ideas were. But it occurs to me that in any small town that is growing at all, there must be place for several real estate businesses. The main point is to get his mind and imagination going on something definitely constructive.

" . . . Your cablegram has just come telling me that you two are married. My dear Randy, I can't tell you what I feel. Selfishly, for the sake of my friend, I am overwhelmingly happy and grateful. I feel that I don't have to be happy for you—you have more than anyone can wish for you, I know that.

"Drake has been more than a brother to me, and from this moment on you are more than my sister. In you two I feel that I have more than a professional reason for coming back to Kings Row. You know, of course, that I have always hoped for an appointment at the State Hospital for the Insane. I have kept Dr. Nolan informed of my progress. He has promised to recommend my appointment when I have finished my work here in Vienna.

"My best love to both of you. Not so many weeks now, and I shall be able to say directly to you both what I find too difficult to say on paper."

Randy folded the thin sheets of paper carefully. It was strange, she thought, how well she knew Parris Mitchell.

Gradually, as the weeks went by, Parris pressed the suggestions Parris had made in his first letter. She was amazed to see how Drake fell more and more easily into the pattern she so carefully planned.

One day, following her carefully disguised leads, Drake recalled the old project for reclaiming the creek-bottom lands nearby. He alighted upon it with joy. He had begun from that day to move toward a normal life. Sometimes, as Randy studied the sharp-cut profile, it seemed as though this catastrophe had burned Drake clear of every trait that had been a little careless and coarse. Drake spoke differently. He was actually careful of his speech and his accent. Randy recognized something that she associated with Drake's aunt, Mrs. Livingstone, and the life of Union street as she had always imagined it.

What Randy did not notice was the sudden and deep change in herself. The tomboy look was gone. The rounded look of rough-and-ready rowdiness that had always characterized her had slipped away like a mask.

"I'm going to move you downstairs next week, Drake."

He frowned. "Where?"

"The front room. That's going to be our living room, and the little room off to the side that never has been anything but a storeroom will be our bedroom."

He thought a moment. "It sounds pleasant."

"There is just one front window. It looks into the front yard. There's a big cedar tree outside, and across the road you can see around Harper's Hill on out into the country. It's quieter, too. You don't hear the switch engines as you do back here."

Drake's face contracted suddenly. "I'll be glad to get where I don't hear them so plain. Sometimes I dream—I guess I'll always have dreams like that."

"I don't think so, Drake." Randy spoke very calmly, but her chest was tight. "You'll have a lot of other things to think about."

"Randy!"

He reached for her hand and held it with all of his strength.

"I want you to promise me that I'll never have to go out of this house until—until I'm dead."

Randy sat down beside him and held his head against her. "Now, darling, you listen to me."

"All right." Drake's breath came in short, quick gasps. Randy knew all at once where the great injury lay, and by some half-conscious instinct what she must say, and what she must avoid saying.

"Remember this always. You've had a terrible accident and all that, but you're just Drake McHugh. You're no different. You can arrange your life anyway you want to. I'm here to see that it's done the way you want it, but—you are Drake, and I love you. Do I have to tell you that every day?"

"Yes."

"Then I will."

The late-afternoon train clanked and rattled its smoky, grimy way from Camperville towards Kings Row.

The passengers sat in the antiquated coach, avoiding, as much as possible, the touch of the gritty, red-plush seats. They wore a look of patient misery—all but one. He was a young man who had stepped from the Chicago express just in time to catch the Kings Row local. He attracted some attention as he attended to the transfer of considerable luggage, all of it tagged and bespotted with foreign labels.

At the station he looked with some surprise at the new brick building. The old one had been of wood, painted a hideous smoke gray. He glanced about him, half expecting to see some familiar faces.

"Hack, sir?"

"Yes. Yes, please."

"Where to?"

"Why—the Central hotel. There is still a Central hotel, I suppose?"

"Yes, sirree. Only one, in fact. Dis way, suh."

The rather decrepit hack swung around the corner and clattered along lower Union street.

At the hotel desk, a thin mousy-looking clerk bowed with an imitation of briskness.

"I'd like a suite, please."

"Suite?"

"Yes. Sitting room, bedroom, bath."

"Well—we haven't exactly got that kind of an arrangement. I could throw two rooms together for you."

He watched as the newcomer wrote: "Dr. Parris Mitchell, Vienna."

Sport Podge

Ken Woodman, the fabricator of fabulous fables, says a sports editor from his home town of Napoleon, O., told him this one for true, and insists that since the story originated on the sports desk, the story must be classified as sports.

This is the way Ken tells the yarn:

Back in my home town there were two plasterers, very able craftsmen; but they sometimes plastered themselves as well as sidewalls and ceilings. And on these occasions, one of them who was a massive hulk of a fellow would unceremoniously pick up the other, who was called 'Shorty' and looked it, and would tuck him under his arm and carry him home.

One night it happened, however, that Shorty was out alone. When, towards morning, the village constable spotted him, Shorty was walking along the edge of the street with one foot in the gutter and the other on the curb. Tears streamed down his lime-seamed face.

"What's the matter, Shorty?" inquired the constable. "Where's your buddy?"

Shorty paused to mop the tears from his cheek with his coat sleeve, before responding:

* * *

"He's desherted me and now look—he's been carryin' me home for so long one leg'sh got shorter 'n the other."

* * *

But Murph Hanna says the story really goes like this:

A guy is leaning against a lamp post when along comes another guy who is walking with one foot on the sidewalk and the other in the gutter and the second guy says to the one against the lamp post:

"You look in bad shape, my friend, you had better let me take you home."

And the first guy says, "What do you mean, I look in bad shape? You must be plastered, walking along with one foot in the gutter and one on the sidewalk."

* * *

And the second guy says, "Is that what's the matter with me? I thought I was crippled."

(And this is a very lame way to get out a Monday morning column. Excuse it please.)

Red Sox Rule In American

Celebrate Patriots Day as First Place Holders.

By AUSTIN BEALMEAR

(Associated Press Sports Writer)

PATRIOT'S day in Boston took on added significance today, with the Red Sox and the Braves setting a pace in the Major league baseball races that would have made Paul Revere's dash through Middlesex county look like a trot.

As the Red Sox returned home from a successful invasion of Yankee Stadium to play Washington in a Patriots day doubleheader, they were in supreme command of the American league and the Braves owned a third interest in the National league lead.

The Red Sox took over sole possession of first place yesterday by stopping the New York Yankees, 5-2. The St. Louis Browns slipped into second place ahead of the New Yorkers as they divided a double-header with Detroit.

The Braves and Pirates formed a cozy little twosome at the top of the National loop until both lost yesterday, allowing the Brooklyn Dodgers to muscle in on their party by brushing aside the Philadelphia Phils.

From the spectators' standpoint, the first Sunday of the 1942 season was a shining success, although the action was confined to seven fronts when the weather forced postponement of the Cleveland game between the Indians and the Chicago White Sox.

Marv Breuer of the Yanks gave up only five hits but he had a shaky fourth inning when the Sox turned three safeties and a pair of walks into four runs.

At St. Louis, both games were on home runs. Chet Laabs smashed a two-run homer in the opened to give the Browns a 2-1 decision over the Tigers, although the winners managed only four hits off Al Benton, one less than Elden Auker yielded in gaining the verdict.

Rookie Charley Fuchs also tossed a four-hitter at the Brownies in the nightcap, but Ned Harris came through with a ninth-inning homer that produced a 1-0 victory for Detroit, spoiling a six-hit pitching job by John Niggeling.

Buck Newson pitched the Washington Senators to a 5-4 triumph over the Athletics in the second game of a twin bill at Philadelphia after the A's had grabbed the opener, 5-1, behind the six-hit elbowing of Phil Marchildon.

Although it had nothing to do with the standings lead, the prize game of the National league was a 14-inning affair between the Cincinnati Reds and the Chicago Cubs at Chicago. Claude Passeau went all the way for the Cubs and gave up seven hits, but the Reds won, 2-1, after committing eight errors and going hitless for the first seven frames.

At Brooklyn, the Dodgers captured the rubber game of their series with the Phils, 6-2, as Dixie Walker drove in four runs and Curt Davis racked up his second pitching victory with a five-hit job.

* * *

John Beazley's four-hitter gave the St. Louis Cardinals a 3-2 decision over the Pirates at Pittsburgh, although he had to have help from Harry Gumbert in the ninth when the Bucs scored both their runs.

At Boston, the Braves suffered their second straight steback at the hands of the New York Giants, who cashed in on a five-hitter by Cliff Melton, for a 5-2 triumph.

Al Smith Picked To Face Browns

CLEVELAND —(AP)— The Indians summoned Al Smith to pitching duty today as they opened five days of activity against the up and going St. Louis Browns.

* * *

The Cleveland left-hander was to have made his season debut against the Chicago White Sox yesterday, but weather forced a postponement.

Denny Galehouse drew the mound assignment for the Browns in the opener of a three-game local series, to be followed by a pair of games at St. Louis.

Hermanns Go On ABC Lanes

Take Average of 1002 Into Tournament.

COLUMBUS —(AP)— Top standings in the American Bowling congress tournament were hardly threatened over the week-end, but the stalwart Hermann Undertakers of St. Louis, former National Match Game champions, will have at 'em tonight.

The Hermanns, with an average of 1002, will be in formidable company on the drives: Coca Colas of Terre Haute, Ind., whose average is 970; Iceland Rink of Akron, 990, and Falstaff Beers of Houston, Texas, 968.

The ABC business office scanned the week's schedule and observed, conservatively, that it might attract larger crowds of spectators.

Yet tournament spokesmen said: "We aren't losing any money, and we aren't making any. We are breaking even."

The 1943 ABC classic at Buffalo, N. Y., will be limited to 50 days and to 4500 five-man teams, Secretary E. H. Baumgarten of Milwaukee disclosed. The present meet is for 73 days, with 5742 teams entered.

It will be the first time the ABC trimmed its program. Baumgarten explained that the draft and war industry is expected to make inroads on team personnel and production of pins. Maple blocks have been requisitioned for the manufacture of shoe lasts, one engineer said.

Umpire Deans

Harry Geisel

William A. McGowan

Retirement of Red Ormsby from the staff of American league umpires leaves William McGowan and Harry Geisel, above, as the "deans" of the junior circuit arbiters. Both came into the league the same year. The A. L. will have 12 instead of 18 umps this year. Ormsby's place is not being filled.

Score Two Wins On Six Runs

(By United Press)

Because they knew how to squeeze two victories out of six runs the Milwaukee Brewers remained the only undefeated team in the American Association today.

The Brewers defeated Minneapolis, 4-2 and 2-1, yesterday to keep the league lead with four victories. The Brewers outhit Minneapolis, 11 to 5, in the opener and won the second, scheduled for seven innings, when Outfielder Hal Peck broke a deadlock with a home run in the eighth.

* * *

Louisville upset the favorites, Columbus, twice and tumbled them from second to fifth place. The Colonels won 3-0 and 4-2. Columbus made only two hits in each game.

Southpaws turned the trick for Manager Gabby Hartnett's Indianapolis club. Bob Logan turned back Toledo 5-2, allowing five hits in the opener and Elon Hogsett gave only six more in the nightcap which the Indians won 6-5.

St. Paul, which has yet to win a game, suffered its third and fourth defeats at the hands of Kansas City, both by scores of 3-2.

Montgomery Hits Comeback Trail

PHILADELPHIA —(INS)— Bob Montgomery, Philadelphia puncher, starts on the comeback trail tonight with a 10-round bout against Joe Peralta, of Tamaqua, at the arena.

Prior to his recent loss to Lightweight King Sammy Angogg, Montgomery had won 14 successive battles. He's favored at seven to five to outpoint Peralta, a Mexican who has beaten Featherweight Champion Chalky Wright.

Minor Veterans Get Chance

Wind Up Diamond Trail In Fast Company.

By TOMMY DEVINE

CHICAGO—(U.P.)—Veteran players in the minors who have been passed up repeatedly by major league scouts will get wide-spread attention this season because of the war, Cincinnati Reds' manager Bill McKechnie predicted today.

In baseball continuously since 1907 as a player, coach and pilot, "Deacon Bill" believes the most significant one to develop as the result of the current conflict is a change in diamond scouting technique.

"The war may be a long one," McKechnie said, "and if baseball's continued operation is permitted we must draw our talent from sources that will not hamper the war effort.

"As I see it that means our scouts must be watchful for players at the extremes of the game's age limits.

"Clubs will be forced to use players who are too young to be called for military service and the oldsters who otherwise might not be given a look by the scouts."

"In recent years," McKechnie pointed out, "big league scouts always had a boutiful crop of rookies to look over and consequently could afford to be choosy about those called up to the majors.

Most of the time they were leery of both an inexperienced kid player and the veteran minor leaguer, but now the scouts necessarily will have to widen the classification of players they're willing to consider and availability for a season or two is going to be a big requirement."

Book Favorites Seldom Click

(By Wide World)

LOUISVILLE, Ky.—What happens to the winter-book favorites when Derby day comes?

The chances are they follow one or more competitors across the finish line at Churchill Downs or wind up out of the money. At least what the record shows for the last 23 years.

Only three times during that span has the opening favorite won. In 1925 he finished 12th in a field of 20 starters, and in 1919 he finished 10th in a field of 12. Other early favorites have finished from second to eighth or failed to start.

Winter-book favorites to win the Derby since 1919 include:

Morvich in 1922, Reigh Count in 1928 and Gallant Fox in 1930. Last year's early favorite at 3-1, Our Boots, finished eighth. Whirlaway, the winner, opened at 8-1 and closed at 3-1 in the winter books.

Alsab Proves Derby Puzzle

Fails to Win in Last Six Times at Post.

By LAWTON CARVER

NEW YORK—(INS)—Alsab may not win the Kentucky Derby. From the way things look at the moment he won't even win another race, but Al Sabath's colt will be everlastingly remembered as the big puzzle of the blue grass classic.

* * *

Like the man who caught a tiger by the tail, no one wants to turn Alsab loose entirely as a possible derby winner, yet the conviction is growing that he shot his bolt when he was filling up the Sabath money sacks as a two-year-old.

He has failed to win his last six starts and has been beaten twice in a row by Colchis, the last time on Saturday in the Chesapeake stakes at Havre de Grace.

Perhaps those who still feel that Alsab can round into form by May 2 for the Louisville extravaganza will pay little heed to that race inasmuch as Colchis isn't a derby eligible and in running second Alsab beat seven derby nominees, including the highly regarder Requested, which ran third in the Chesapeake.

As to that it should be pointed out that Alsab came on from back in 10th place, then was passed by Colchis in the stretch, which would indicate that he can be out-run even when he's in front going to the wire, and may be out-run again in the big one.

In any case this derby most assuredly will be the most wide open race for the big prize of the bluegrass in years, and a most striking contrast to last year's running when Whirlaway was a sure thing and ran that way to set up a new record.

Any one of the starting field can take this one, although I still think the winner will be among Alsab, Requested, With Regards, Sun Again and Bless Me.

Other leading contenders include Some Chance, Devil Diver, Shut Out, Buckskin, and Apache, the latter to get a real test on the coming Saturday at Jamaica.

You can pay your money on the barrel head and take your choice for better or worse from here on out, with 150 originally nominated, any of 100 still potential starters, and any one from an ultimate field of a dozen or so capable of coming through this time because of the lack of a standout so far.

Last year it was Whirlaway, which won; the year previous Bimelech, which finished second to Gallahadion; just prior to that Johnstown, which won; in 1938 Fighting Fox, an also ran to Lawrin; in 1937 War Admiral, which won; in 1936 Brevity, second to Bold Venture and so on. There were standouts for those derbies, but on the basis of recent performances there won't be any this time, and one man's guess is going to be as good as another. As good a procedure as any may be to pick a good long shot and hope for the best, one like Gallahadion which paid $35.20.

Milkman Sets Record While Winning Boston Marathon

By TOM NOONAN

BOSTON—(U.P.)—Met Joe Smith, my milk man, out in Medford early today, and he was the same easy-going Irish-American he was before he created marathon history by winning the Boston A. A. race in world record time.

"Hello, there," Joe grinned. "I guess I fooled myself as much as you reporters by finishing first yesterday."

"Did I expect to set a record? Stop kidding. Heck, no guy was as surprised as I was. The best I hoped to do was finish somewhere in the first 20.

* * *

"I laid back at the beginning. Felt beautiful all the way. I never looked behind after taking the lead from Lou Gregory about three miles from home and I didn't feel concerned at all until a reporter hollered at Kenmore Square (about 1½ miles from the finish), 'Gregory is 150 yards behind you.'"

That didn't bother Joe much either for he crossed the back bay finish line 200 yards ahead of Gregory in the new world record time of 2 hours, 26 minutes, 51 1-5 seconds for the 26-mile 385-yard course. The lanky milkman's time in the 46th running of the Boston classic was 1 minute, 37 2-5 seconds faster than the former world mark set by Gerard Cote of Montreal in the 1940 race.

Joe isn't exactly a novice. He started road racing four years ago, finished fifth in the 1941 B. A. A. and won the national championship at Yonkers, N. Y., last November. But he had been ill several times during the winter and wasn't given much chance to win the B. A. A. on the nation's toughest marathon course.

Lanky Joe ran so fast over the final miles that he carried Gregory, 36-year-old Cleveland (N. Y.) high school principal, to second place in a clocking that slashed 25 seconds from Cote's old standard. That wasn't all, either. Joe's gritty race inspired his unknown teammate, Carl Maroney of the North Bedford club to finish third. Another teammate, Anthony Medeiros, placed 11th, and North Medford won the team prize for the best three-man showing.

Springfield Enters Meet

Leads Field in Annual Delaware Track Event.

DELAWARE — (INS) — Springfield high school track team, which won the Newark relays championship for the second time Saturday, will try for another consecutive championship this year at the Ohio Wesleyan Relays, the annual high school cinder classic to be held at Delaware April 25.

Last season, Springfield won the class A event and O. S. S. O. from Xenia copped the class B trophy.

Coach George E. Gauthelr, Ohio Wesleyan physical education director and manager of the relays, predicted that this year's attendance will equal last year's mark of 1130 scanticlads.

* * *

The Ohio Wesleyan relays were inaugurated in 1932 by Coach Gauthier and Toledo Scott and Upper Arlington of Columbus have each taken top honors on five different occasions in the class A and B divisions respectively.

Springfield's balanced track and field team outpointed the Newark relays field of 21 teams with 67½ points. Akron North placed second with 40½.

The repeating champs broke two relays records, bettering the former mark of 64.7. They were set two years ago with a 60.5 performance in the shuttle relay, and clipping the 1:35 record established by Columbus East in the 880-yard dash last year when the Wildcats made the stretch in 1:33.7.

Hockey Threatened By War Regulations

TORONTO —(U.P.)— Unless there is a sudden influx of American players to replace Canadian stars, professional ice hockey may become a war casualty because of Canada's new man-power regulations, it appeared today.

* * *

The new limitations will require the players to be more than 30 years old or less than 21, or married before July, 1940, and authorities believed the Canadian government might forbid men to devote full time to such a non-essential industry as hockey.

* * *

Members of the National Hockey league's board of governors withheld comment on reports making the rounds that major league hockey—at least in Canada—bowed out for the duration when the Toronto Maple Leafs won the 1942 Stanley Cup from the Detroit Red Wings Saturday night, 3-1.

OKAYS PLAN

Gov. Bricker Approves State Senatorial Redistricting.

COLUMBUS —(U.P.)— Gov. John W. Bricker today signed the state senatorial redistricting plan which will be in effect for the next decade but the other two members of the board declined to approve it "until we have checked the figures to make sure they are correct."

State Auditor Joseph T. Ferguson and Secretary of State John E. Sweeney, remaining members of the board, said they would study the report today and probably would sign it "this afternoon or tomorrow."

The plan was devised by Bricker after the state supreme court invalidated the board's 1941 reapportionment and ordered a new reapportionment which returned the districts to their previous status.

STOCK MARKET RECORDS FAIR GAINS FOR DAY

Scrap Supply Keeps Steel Industry Going, But No Reserve Piles Up.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—The stock market recorded a fair number of fractional gains in today's trading but certain leaders were unable to extend Saturday's rally.

Ahead were Glenn Martin, Texas Co., Southern Pacific, Southern Railway, American Smelting and General Motors. Union Pacific dipped a major fraction. Unchanged to a shade lower were Chrysler, DuPont, U. S. Steel, Anaconda and N. Y. Central.

The question of scrap supplies still aroused keen interest among followers of industrial trends in connection with the steel industry's goals for maintaining production near 100 per cent of capacity.

Concerning this, the magazine Steel commented:

"Scrap supply is keeping up with the improvement of the past few weeks but increased consumption is preventing accumulation in reserves. Not all areas are receiving sufficient material and some open hearths continue idle. Efforts to bring out dormant material are continued without slackening, adding much to the normal output.

"Observers hold the hope that collections during the summer will be sufficient to build some stocks for next winter. Movement from the head of the lakes has started in a small way and promises to increase. Mining of steelworks slag dumps is adding tonnage."

TELLS OF FSA PURCHASE PLAN FOR FARMERS

Holmes County Representative Says Four Families There Benefit Under Program.

MILLERSBURG — "Planting time this year finds four more Holmes county farm families on the road to ownership of family-size farms under the Tenant Purchase program of the Farm Security administration," Mrs. Oneta Way, chairman of Holmes County Tenant Purchase committees, stated today.

These four families were chosen from 11 applicants who wanted to buy farms under this plan. Nineteen Holmes county families have become landowners in the past four years through the program.

Holmes county was one of the 51 counties in Ohio that were allotted funds for the purchase of farms in 1941.

The Tenant Purchase program provides that the families who buy farms may borrow the entire purchase price. The loan is paid back through variable payment plan whereby the borrower pays according to his income—more in years of good crops and prices and less in poor years, Mrs. Way stated in explaining the loans.

"Not only does the family benefit, but the community of the nation as well," Mrs. Way pointed out. "The community benefits by the addition of a family which plans to be located there permanently. The nation gains every time another farm is owned by the man who works it, because of the improvement in land and buildings which pride of ownership leads the owner-operator to work for.

Applications for the loans may be made at any time at the F. S. A. office, court house, Millersburg or any Monday afternoon from 1:00 to 4:00, civil service room, postoffice, Wooster.

Other members of the Holmes county tenant purchase committee are John J. Hart and Benjamin B. Weaver, both farmers. Their work is to examine tenant purchase applications and select families qualified to undertake farm ownership, to advise them on selecting farms and to approve the farms which are selected. This committee acts as a committee not as an individual, it was pointed out.

they had been hampered by the lack of "hot-mix" material for permanent patching works.

"Putting the cold-mix and gravel into the holes helps for a while," said Hebel, "but the rains and the heavy traffic soon throw such patches out again. Especially when we have no roller to smooth them out."

The street crew was working on Second street today, having already completed work on Park avenue east, Lexington avenue, Mulberry street, Davis road and Townview Circle.

The superintendent said that it would be difficult to estimate the amount of damage to be repaired but said it was "much lower" than in previous years. Council has appropriated approximately $77,000 this year for street repairs. This figure includes labor, materials and equipment needed for the work.

Few permanent improvements for city streets have been planned so far. The city has let a contract for the improvement of East First street from Bushnell to the Pennsylvania railroad tracks and council has approved the improvement of Bartley avenue.

City officials are also conferring with the state highway engineers concerning the possible improvement of Park avenue east and the streets around Central park. The state has offered to help repair this stretch because it is a part of U. S. Route 42, and has also asked the city to cooperate in the improvement of East First and Hedges streets, which were used last year as a truck by-pass link of Route 42.
